Scene 1 New York Harbor

TSOL (NYC): (Questionable) Why can't I get off my podium? I want to go see the Eiffel Tower.

Narrator: Since the Statue of Liberty is from France she keeps up on French culture. She heard people talking about the Eiffel Tower. Now she wants to see him.

Ifel (France): (Upset) Please don't step on me.

TSOL (NYC): (Struggling) I just need to move my feet.

Ifel (France): (Angry and upset) I get it! I'm a restaurant. That doesn't mean you have to spit on me.

TSOL (NYC): (Hopefully) (She starts to dance and wiggle) Maybe this dancing will help me.

Ifel: (Exhausted) I'm tired of people being mean to me. I need a friend to talk to.

TSOL: (Still hopeful) (Continues Dancing and Wiggling) I almost have it. (Gets off her podium.) Yes! I haven't been off my podium in 140 years. Now I need to learn how to swim.

Narrator: Some time passed and the Statue of Liberty finally figures out how to swim.

TSOL: (Happy) Ok I finally figured it out let's go. Let me eat my pickle first.

Narrator: That's how she stays green. 5 days past and then she made it.

Lisa: (In NYC) (Upset) Where is the Statue of Liberty! Now let go to France.

Scene 2 In France

TSOL: (TSOL looks around and spots the Eiffel Tower.) I found the Eiffel Tower let's go.

Ifel: (Sees the Statue of Liberty) Will you be my friend.

TSOL: Yes I'll be your friend. Let's go to New York.

Ifel: Ok let's go

Lisa: (Falls on ground) Now where's the Eiffel Tower. I give up! I'll never be a photographer.

Narrator: And the Statue of Liberty and the Eiffel Tower lived happily ever after.
