by Paige Zarpentine

Narrator: (Peter is on stage) This is Peter. He has a disease that could kill him but his Mom and Dad can't afford the medicine.

(Peter exits)

(Mom and Dad Enter)

Dad: How are we going to pay for the medicine?

Mom: I don't know.

Dad: Well, we could start saving.

Mom: We already started, and we still don't have enough.

Dad: Calm down, we will think of something.

Mom: Fine.

(Mom and Dad exit)

(Peter enters)

Peter: I'm ready.

(Mom enters)

Mom: Okay. Get in the car.

Narrator: Peter and his mom are going to the store to get groceries.

(Peter faints in the store)

Mom: Oh my goodness, Peter!

(Mom gets out her phone and calls Dad)

Peter, Peter! Aaaaah, Peter!

Dad: Slow down. What did Peter do?

Mom: He fainted.

Dad: Okay. Call the hospital.

Mom: What's their number again?

Dad: (Sighs) 9-1-1

Mom: Oh yeah, that's right.

(beep beep beep)

My son fainted and he has a disease. I am so worried.

Dr. Bob: (Talking from backstage)

What's the address?

Mom: WalMart, 1223 Peach Street.

Dr. Bob: (Dr. Bob enters) Okay. (beep)

(Dr. Carly enters)

Mom: What is happening?

Dr. Carly: We need to bring him to the hospital.

Mom: Okay, can I afford it?

Dr. Bob: I think so.

Narrator: So Peter is going to the hospital with his Mom, Dr. Bob, and Dr. Carly.

Dr. Carly: You need to step back.

Mom: Why?

Dr. Carly: Just step back. We'll take him from here.

Mom: Fine.

Narrator: So Peter has been in the hospital for three days and finally woke up.

Peter: What happened?

Mom: You fainted.

Dr. Bob: He should be okay to leave. Just make sure he takes these once every day.

Mom: Okay.

Narrator: So Peter fought a disease and within two years his disease was gone.
